

PROFILE

TERRENCE W. FARRELL

Terrence. W. Farrell has a B.Sc and M.Sc in Economics from the University of the West Indies, St. Augustine Campus and a PhD. in Economics from the University of the Toronto. He lectured at UWI in Monetary Development Economics from 1978 to 1980. He joined the Central Bank of Trinidad & Tobago in 1980, eventually being appointed deputy governor in 1992. He served as the Regional Manager, Eastern Caribbean and Guyana, for a regional information technology company. He is currently Group Executive Director, responsible for Business Development, Strategic Planning and Technology for Guardian Holdings Limited one of the Region's largest and fastest growing financial services companies.

A Fellow of the Institute of Banking of Trinidad and Tobago, Dr. Farrell has authored a book on central banking and co-edited a book on Caribbean monetary integration. He has contributed to several books and periodicals on economics and information technology management and speaks frequently on matters relating to banking and financial services, technology, economics and education.